Playground and O. B. Civic Center Discussion

Mr. H. J. DEVEREAUX
GETS OFFICIAL ANSWER

FROM O. B. CHAMBER

Ocean Beach, April 16, 1925.

Mr. Kirk Smith,
Editor of "The Beach News":

As secretary of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce, I have been officially requested to answer the letter as published in "The Beach News" by Mr. Devereaux on the playground question.

When any man in a community sees fit to retard or even to try to retard the advancement and progress of the community there must be some good reason, but what that reason is in this case no one knows. Not yet, anyway, for Mr. Devereaux has given no reason other than that we don't need the extra burden! We are asking Mr. Devereaux if he knows just how much, in dollars and cents, the proposed bonds will cost in taxes which are spread over a period of from five to ten years.

As an example in straight mathematics suppose we work the problem out. There are somewhere between 5,500 and 6,500 taxable lots in Ocean Beach. The principal taken at $20,000 over the number of lots, say 6,000, would be $3,333.33 per lot. Extend this amount over a period of five years and it amounts to $0.6666, over a period of ten years it amounts to something less than the average person spends on a piece of candy or the small sum of $0.3333.

It is generally the people who are kicking the hardest on taxes that spend the most money outside of their community and who prefer the other fellow's grass because it looks greener.

If you should wonder how La Jolla got ahead so nicely ask any La Jollaian and he will tell you that they pull together and that when they want something in the line of improvement they go out to get it and they so far have succeeded where others have failed. When Ocean Beach can produce (by herself) something in the way of improvements that are worth while she will receive the attention of worthwhile people as La Jolla has done. I use La Jolla as the example in my problem because La Jolla is, in my estimation, what Ocean Beach should and will be—but not if one is to listen to Mr. Devereaux, so just for argument, although there can be no argument to a question so vital in importance to the community as this is, let us forget Mr. Devereaux for the present and go on with our worthwhile task of "Greater Ocean Beach." Vote for the Playground Bonds!

Mr. Devereaux evidently does not know that the proposed playground is to be a combined playground and community center. A place for young and old alike. There will be supervision furnished by the school board, and the salary won't be a big, fat one like Mr. Devereaux would have one believe.

The cliff and beach question as regards children can be better answered by some mother who has children that she would appreciate having watched at the playground rather than be out on the cliffs—where, as Mr. Devereaux said, "where they would be made into red blooded men and women instead of sissy's at a playground."

GET-TOGETHER PICNIC

BY OKLAHOMANS

President Sam B. Linley, of the Oklahoma State Society, announces that that society will celebrate the state's natal day with an old-fashioned get-together picnic in the Pepper Grove, Balboa Park, on Wednesday, April 22, from 12 to 5. "Come with well-filled baskets," says Mr. Finley, "so that we can have an old-time Oklahoma spread." Coffee will be furnished, but participants are requested to bring cups.

Echo From San Diego

YES! WHY WASTE
TAX MONEY?

Mr. Kirk Smith,
Editor "The Beach News":

We all know "The stitch in time saves nine," and how the small misdemeanor soon grows to a broken law.

Children should not be deprived of the opportunity to be original, but a playground with a supervisor never tries to do that.

Team work is a wonderful thing. It should be learned when children are on playgrounds rather than in the lock-step of the prison.

A dollar spent to save a child grows to many dollars when we try to save the grown man or woman from the evil of his way.

All cannot be counted in money. A trained conscience and a trained mind in a sound body is the aim for every child.

Let us have the playground. I am not trying to sell my property in the vicinity. I think it will increase in value. I do not live in Ocean Beach, but I pay taxes there.

The child is father of the man. Give him the best there is.

One sure sign that spring has arrived is the introduction by Manager Ray Ericsson of a new policy of producing big feature shows every night, except Monday, at the Ocean theater, beginning next week. Tonight (Saturday) Buster Keaton will be seen in "The Navigator," an don Sunday the last of the "Go-Getters" will be shown, as well as Viola Dane and Walter Heins in "Along Came Ruth." For the mid-week special the famous production of Elinor Glyn's "His Hour," has been booked, with Aileen Pringle and John Gilbert in the leading roles, and on Thursday and Friday a corking good feature has been secured at regular prices. There will be special news reels tonight and on Tuesday and Wednesday, while excellent comedy films are added at all times.

UNIQUE HOME ENTER-TAINMENT PLANNED

From April 13 to 24 it is hoped that in the schools and homes children will be read or told the story of "Hansel and Gretel," and then encouraged to spontaneously act this out. This will take very little of the teachers' or parents' time, yet its influence will be far reaching in encouraging children to read and play good stories.

Copies of the story of "Hansel and Gretel" and any needed information may be obtained free of charge from the Community Service drama director, Miss Sybil Eliza Jones, telephone 622-25.

Playing "Hansel and Gretel" during the next two weeks will also better prepare the children for the opera to be presented on April 24th and 25th at the Spreckels, thus bringing about a happy culmination to their play.

"LOMA LORE"

By WINIFRED DAVIDSON

Point Loma, California

"We found in the military department stationed here Major McKinstry, Major S. P. Heintzleman, Captain Coutts and Col. John B. Weller, and quite a detachment of cavalry. They were quartered in the old adobe buildings. Extensive preparations were being made at the time to start out and survey the boundary line between the United States and Mexico. The Mexican commissioners, with troops, were quartered in the old hide houses at La Playa, the same houses mentioned by Dana in his "Two Years Before the Mast." The Indians seemed to feel most at home lying half buried up in the hot dry sand of the river bed.

"Soon after our arrival in the harbor some of the Old Town residents came on board and solicited the passengers to vote for delegates to attend the Constitutional Convention that was to be held at Monterey. They told us if we did not wish to go to the polls in Old Town we could vote by 'proxy'—that is, we could write our names on a strip of paper and they would vote for us! The main question at issue was whether California should come into the Union as a free or slave state. Some of the passengers preferred to go up to town and vote; others, for the novelty of the thing, sent their names on a piece of paper. I concluded to go to the polls on election day (August first) and voted for the first time in California. On the second day of August twenty-one of the passengers concluded to leave the vessel and encamp on the beach, near where Mr. Brown's house is now located (back of the Quarantine Station, I think—W. D.). It was supposed that the Oxford could not reach San Francisco short of six weeks at the rate we had been sailing, and as the steamer from Panama was expected to arrive in a few days, it was the expectation to take passage with her. While at La Playa I opened a trading tent and sold to the Old Town folks dry goods, boots, shoes and canned fruits and meats. Captain Cave J. Coutts in the mean time came down to La Playa with his tape line and laid the place off in town lots, which remain about the same now as then, unimproved. The U. S. Government at this time commenced to erect the shed-shaped barracks on the hillside which have since been removed to this side of the water.

"The steamer California, from San Francisco for Panama, loaded down with passengers, came into port while we were camped on the beach. We were advised to return East; the passengers stating that 'the gold was all dug out, and the water was too high to work in the mines.' But some half-dozen soldiers, who had been on a three months' furlough, showed us some large specimens of gold and said there was plenty more of the same in the mines. So we concluded to go on further. While at La Playa two other vessels came into port for fresh provisions. A large number of immigrants also arrived overland.

"The principal amusement at Old Town which attracted the people together, was a series of 'fandangos' which took place in the old adobe buildings then located on the left-hand side of the plaza. There were also some bailes grandes held at the casa Bandini, located where the Cosmopolitan Hotel now stands. The military officers and leading class of residents were the participants. I recollect well the late Col. Coutts being much interested in one of the belles of the party—whom he afterward married. (This was Ysadora Bandini.—W. D.)

"The old cannon occupied then, as now, a conspicuous place on the plaza, and was regarded with much interest by strangers. The adobe church and bells appeared pretty much the same a quarter of a century ago as today.

"We visited the old mission and gathered olives from the trees there. The ancient ruins of the Presidio on the hill do not appear to me much changed; they were crumbling down then as we see them now, but their decay has been slow. The palm or date trees stood as sentinels by the wayside as they do now.

"Immigrants were arriving overland every day from the southern and western states; many also came through Mexico and followed up the coast of Lower California. Each had his story of the many hardships endured on the journey. Many were compelled to sell their mules for $2.50 to $5 each, in order to obtain means to furnish themselves with clothing and food, so that they could travel on further to the mines; and some found employment on the new barracks buildings that were going up at La Playa.

"On the 16th of August the old steamer Panama, Capt. Bailey, came into port, bound up to San Francisco. We struck our tents immediately and went on board, together with some sixty others. The fare was only $65, a difference of $50 from present rates. We could only get a chance to eat at the 'fourth table' and had to sleep on deck. In two days and a half we sailed through the Golden Gate into San Francisco harbor—220 days after leaving Boston. Our barque Oxford arrived in ten days afterward. J. H. RICHARDSON."

As shown by letters from Lieut. Weeden, and by articles in the Union, the work of turning the river was actually, finally under way.

On September 11 appears this:

"We visited the San Diego river yesterday and went over the ground where the work of turning the river is going forward. We were surprised to see how much of this important work has already been finished; it is progressing very rapidly. The embankment—which is to run from Presidio hill on the east side of the river to the point of the hill of the southeast side of False Bay, over 7,000 feet—is a very solid-looking structure, 15 feet wide at the top, 40 feet wide at the base, and 5 ft. high, it is faced on the north side with a heavy stone wall, which rests upon a superstructure of stone five feet deep. Above this embankment the new channel for the river is being excavated. Already 3,400 feet of the embankment have been completed, and the work progresses at the rate of 500 feet per week. We should judge that there are about 100 men employed on the work at present, of whom about 50 are Chinese. The latter are getting out stone and working on the embankment and wall. It is interesting to watch them laying the stone in the wall; they are very precise and each piece of stone must fit exactly before they are satisfied. It looks like slow work to see them fitting in the stone by hand, but they really build very fast, and the finished wall is exceedingly handsome work and has the substantial and durable aspect of the wall of a heavy fortification. The stone is obtained from Presidio and Stockton hills, and we observed a large force of men at work getting it out and rolling it down the hill sides. We shouldn't like to stand in range of some of the big boulders that we saw bounding down into the valley."

Two days later, Lieut. Weeden had this:
* * * "A doubt having been publicly expressed as to the stability of the levee now being built by the United States for the purpose of turning the San Diego river into False Bay, I beg leave to submit to you, for publication, the following data concerning the dimensions of important levees already built, and which are known to be sufficiently stable, and to compare them with the dimensions of the levee now in process of construction at this point."

FIRST AWARD IN ARCHITECTURE

HONORS WON BY
MISSION BEACH COMPANY IN LANDSCAPING

George L. Barney and T. A. Rife, sales agents for the Mission Beach Company, announce that the subdivision plan of Mission Beach has won premier honors at the second annual exhibition of landscape architects, held in Los Angeles recently.

In selecting the Mission Beach plan from the many submitted at the exhibition, the Jury of Award reported as follows:

"First award to Mission Beach, San Diego, Calif.; Cook and Hall, architects. This subdivision plan presents a clever scheme of a long, narrow, flat and spit development. Particular interest is shown by the provision for mosquito fleet anchorage, in the business section arrangement, the curvilinear drive intersecting the entire property, and the proposed zoning of buildings. Access to the water from interior lots by way of court passages cares for convenience of the major portion of the property, and withal, a strand walk for public use is retained."

BOULEVARD PAVING

"NEARLY COMPLETED

Announcement is made that the paving of both sides of the Mission Beach boulevard is expected to be completed and open for traffic about the 1st of May. All adjoining streets in the southern section have been paved, the total contract calling for an expenditure of $66,000.

Get Sharp Tuning With Wax Records

Phonograph Accessory Will Rejuvenate Set and Add Selectivity.

By LESTER B. MCNELLY

We read a lot these days about "sharp tuning" and "selectivity," of the newer sets. We hear the "DX" hounds talking casually about getting stations that seem impossible. Sometimes those "DX" hounds get over-enthusiastic, but many times they are talking facts. The reason that we doubt many of their stories is because we cannot duplicate their feats, and the reason that many of us cannot duplicate their feats is because our sets tune too broadly.

If an expert diagnosed our troubles he would probably tell us that our aerial was too long or that our inducances were too close, and by the time he got through we would feel that our faithful old box of junk was in the single-circuit crystal class. The expert is probably right, but here's a little stunt that will rejuvenate the old set and give it selectivity to the nth degree.

Material needed: Fifty feet of insulated wire not smaller than No. 24, two 12-inch or 14-inch disk graphophone records. Two flathead machine screws with nuts. One stove bolt  $\frac{3}{4}$  inch by 2 inches with two washers and two nuts.

Winding the Coils.—Take a round bottle about 2 inches in diameter and near the base at equal distances apart place three pieces of adhesive tape each  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches long. Spare 3 feet for a lead wire and then make 35 wraps around the bottle in a clock-wise direction, keeping the successive turns to pile on each other in order to make the coil as compact as possible. Bring the ends of the tape up over the coil and use each tape to jiggle the coil loose from the bottle. Slide the coil off the bottle and use the tapes to bind the coil as tightly as possible. Clip the coil from the original bulk of wire leaving a 3-foot lead. The next coil is a duplicate of the first.

Drilling the Records.—Three inches from the center of the graphophone records drill a hole to accommodate the flathead machine screws and countersink the holes deeply enough to avoid any possible projection of the heads of the screws above the surface.

Mounting the Coils.—Take two pieces of very stiff cardboard, or preferably fiber 1 inch wide and  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches long. Drill a hole in the center of each of the same size that was used on the records. Insert the screws in the records and mount the coils rigidly by means of the cardboards as "bridges." Bind tightly on the nuts, the leads of both coils should point toward the circumference of the records.

Final Assembly.—Drill a  $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch hole in a block of wood 1 inch thick, and 4 inches square, countersink to accommodate head of bolt. Insert bolt through block, slip on a washer, then place on the bolt one record with the coil down and one record with the coil up, with a washer between, then comes the third washer. Bind the whole together with a nut until all slack is taken up, but not so tight that the records drag. After final adjustment of tension is made, the whole assembly can be locked with the extra nut.

When Outdoor Antenna Overcomes Difficulties

An indoor antenna is more efficient for receiving radio signals than a loop but the latter has directional properties which make it exceptionally valuable in some locations. If you live in a steel-framed building in which metal lath has been used on the walls, the efficiency of either a loop or an indoor antenna will be low. The only way to overcome this difficulty is to use an outdoor antenna or else to use at least a five-tube set. But, even the most powerful receiver cannot be expected to bring in distant stations on a loop or indoor antenna when the whole room is practically a metal box.

THE KIWI

Billie Brownie was much excited. He was going to call upon a bird-creature he had never seen before. Of course he always enjoyed calling on his old friends. He liked to hear more of their news.

Sometimes he liked to have them tell him the same things about themselves for then he could tell others who hadn't heard all the news, and he could freshen up his own memory about their ways.

But it was an event to call on a new creature he had never seen at all.

He put on his best brown suit and his best brown stocking cap with the brown tassel at the end, and started on his journey.

The new creature upon whom he was to call was the Kiwi.

He didn't quite know how to pronounce the creature's name but he did his best, in his own guesswork fashion and knew that would do.

"One comfort always is," Billie Brownie said to himself, "that animals won't glare at you if you don't pronounce their family names correctly."

He followed the directions Mother Nature had given him. And then he came before the Kiwi.

"I'm Billie Brownie," he said, introducing himself. "Mother Nature has given me the power to understand her children and the way they speak."

"You will find, too, that you can understand me. Mother Nature attended to that, for, as she said, a one-sided conversation wouldn't be of much use."

"I do understand you," said the Kiwi.

"It's a fine day," said Billie Brownie, for the Kiwi didn't seem to be doing any talking, though he looked friendly enough. He didn't look particularly lively though.

"Is it?" said the Kiwi. "I hadn't noticed."

"Yes," said Billie Brownie, "or at least I think it is. Some might say it was a bit too windy, or others might say it was a bit too sharp, but to my way of thinking it is very pleasant."

"I'm Billie Brownie," He Said.

"What is your way of thinking?" asked the Kiwi, suddenly.

"Well, well," said Billie Brownie, "it's just a Brownie's way of thinking."

"Oh," said the Kiwi, "then it doesn't mean that only along one certain road or way you can think? You are able to think anywhere?"

"Dear me, yes, I should hope so," said Billie Brownie.

"I wonder," he went on after another pause, "if you wouldn't tell me something about yourself?"

"I don't mind doing that," said the Kiwi.

"You can see what I look like with your own eyes—for I notice you have your own or at least I suppose they are your own. You didn't borrow them, did you?"

"Gracious no," said Billie Brownie. "Then," said the Kiwi, "you can notice with your own eyes that I look something like a small ostrich and something like a white leghorn hen."

"In fact, I'm somewhere between the two in the animal world. I'm from Australia—a country in which many curious and interesting animals live—and I'm like a mixture of a small Australian ostrich and a white leghorn hen as I said, and as you can see."

"I have down instead of feathers. The eggs I lay are not so large as those of a hen."

"I can't fly at all worth mentioning. In fact I'm just an odd creature."

"But I'm odd enough not to mind being odd. That's the only way to be if you are odd."

"If you are odd and are sorry you are odd, it is a great pity and is apt to cause you unhappiness."

"But if you're odd and don't mind, then no harm is done, and every one is more or less satisfied."

"You came to see me because I was odd, possibly?"

"Possibly," said Billie Brownie, "as long as you don't mind the use of that word."

"But truly I came to see you more because you were a new creature I'd never seen before, and I wanted to tell my friends about you."

"Ah," said the Kiwi, "so the friends of Billie Brownie will know about me! That's not so bad, not so bad." The Kiwi ended, looking at Billie Brownie in rather a foolish way.

"No, can't say that I ever did."

"Well, you're a singular sort of man to have a phenomenon like that occurring under your eyes every day, and not investigate it."

"I dunno, maybe so."

"Hasn't any one in these parts ever investigated it?"

"Well, now, since you ask, Pearson's boy—right promis'n sort of a lad was Jeff—he did kind o' lay in wait fur the pesky hoop one evening longside yonder rock, half way up the hill."

"When was this?"

"About last May, ef I reck'lect."

"And what happened? What did he find out?"

"Well, now, p'raps he found out something and p'raps he didn't. Can't say."

"Can't say! Why not?"

"Well—you see—Jeff, he never spoke no more after that pesky hoop came a-rollin' up to where he was waitin' longside o' the rock. Jest threw up his hands an' came a-runnin' down the hill ahead o' the hoop like he was bein' chased by some sort o' devil or 'nother, an' hid himself away in the ol' straw stack over there."

"Singular!"

"Ye-es, ef was sort o' singular. An' when me an' his father dug him out o' the stack, he was plum daft, an' he ain't ever spoke since then. But I dunno whether et was somethin' about the pesky black hoop that did et, or whether he was sort o' struck by the lightnin' as he got up in front o' the rock to git a good look at the hoop, for you see, et was durin' a 'lectric storm that Jeff lay in wait up there on the hill, an' me an' his father was talkin' down here about what a big lightnin' hit the rock where he was waitin', an' then Jeff came a-tumblin' down the hill in front o' the pesky hoop an' hid in the ol' straw stack."

"Did any one, after that, attempt to get a close view of the hoop?"

"Not that I know of, Pearson's boy's trouble has kind o' scared everybody away, an' we jest let the hoop roll an' keep out of its road. We're generally o' the opinion hereabouts that the devil's business ain't none of ours."

With this rural philosophy, the old farmer turned and went into the farmhouse, leaving the tourist with whom he had been conversing standing very much perplexed, gazing off at the skyline of a long slope that began among a clump of trees about a quarter of a mile away and ended at the bank of the river that wound by the old farmer's domain.

Every evening at sundown for almost a year past a black hoop about four feet in diameter had been seen to appear on the sky-line of this slope at a distance of some forty feet from the clump of trees at the top, and roll rapidly down the incline, to vanish like an apparition within a short distance of the river below.

What this mysterious black hoop was, no one knew; and since Jeff Pearson's misfortune no one had attempted to investigate the phenomenon. The old farmer had even advised the tourist to leave the matter severely alone; but James Moor was determined to investigate for himself, and he now started off towards the slope, when suddenly, from a point about forty feet below the clump of trees at the top of the incline, the black hoop—appearing as unaccountably as if drawn out of thin air—began its usual evening descent, just as if a thick barrel-hoop, lying flat high up on the slope, had suddenly erected itself from the short grass and began to roll down the hill. Only, when this mysterious black wheel had arrived within twenty feet of the river below, it vanished as suddenly and as strangely as it had come.

Three times before James Moor had witnessed this remarkable phenomenon, but he was not less amazed at witnessing it for the fourth time. In fact, the thing grew more uncanny at each successive occurrence, and the tourist felt almost grateful that he had not met with the hoop in its descent. If he had, he might now be hiding in the old farmer's straw stack!

Yet, now that the phenomenon was over for the day, he could safely investigate the track of the black hoop. So, setting off, James Moor climbed to the top of the slope and carefully examined that particular spot where the apparition always made its appearance. But he discovered nothing unusual in the ground thereabout, it being like all the rest of the uncultivated land in those parts—covered with short grass, with a few pebbles and stones scattered about, and here and there a gopher or squirrel hole.

Slowly and painstakingly he made his way down the incline in the late track of the mysterious circle, ending his investigation at the bank of the river near which the apparition had suddenly faded into nothing—and ending it in vain, for the nature of the manifestation remained as profound as before, and as uncanny.

Returning to the farmhouse, he fell into a deep meditation about the matter; after which he dropped asleep, to dream that the black hoop was made of smoke and was bowled every evening down the slope by an invisible fiend, who invariably vanished at the river's bank, taking the hoop with him, into a nice, clean hole in the air. The next evening James Moor lay in wait near the foot of the incline, with a rifle in easy reach, and when the mysterious circle rolled into range he endeavored to put a bullet into it. But he merely succeeded in killing a calf.

The next evening—this time being careful not to get in range with the cattle—he poured a quantity of buckshot into the thing as it came bowling down the hillside, to be thoroughly startled by witnessing the hoop leap into itself and disappear some fifty feet distant from its accustomed destination.

"Confounded queer!" muttered the tourist. "Must be an apparition after all."

This was on Thursday. On the Saturday following, James Moor witnessed something all alone that he didn't report to his host, for fear that that old gentleman would think his city guest held the truth altogether too lightly. The mysterious black hoop, instead of appearing some forty feet below the clump of trees at the top of the slope and bowling down the incline, suddenly appeared at the foot of the slope near the river and bowled rapidly up the hill, to vanish at that particular locality where it usually appeared.

There was something positively unholy in the mysterious circle suddenly appearing and rolling of itself uphill, and the tourist got it into his head that the country air wasn't doing his health any good. Yet he couldn't very well continue his tour until funds came from the city, and to improve his leisure and incidentally disclose his courage to the old farmer's pretty daughter, Jessica, he went up on the slope Sunday noon and fixed in the path of the uncanny black hoop a netting of gunny-sack and tow-string.

What a clever thing it would be, he thought, to entrap the apparition and present it, with his compliments, to pretty Jessica. But that evening the hoop made a neat detour around the netting and bowled down the incline, to vanish as usual near the river below.

Clearly, the hoop was no common hoop, for either it had intelligence of itself, or it was directed by some intelligent power.

Three times thereafter, twice down the hill and once up the hill, the apparition bowled unmolested. Then, on a Thursday evening, as the tourist, his host, and a couple of farm-hands were waiting for the uncanny thing to make its appearance an immense sow from some neighboring farm suddenly hove into sight high up on the slope near that clump of trees at the top, and as this unwieldy behemoth of the pen came into view the mysterious black hoop also appeared on the sky-line of the slope and began to bowl down the incline towards the river.

Perhaps the sow was up there merely for rootings, but when she saw the rolling hoop, instead of tucking her snout down and feeling, as the men thought she would, she squealed like some monstrous, disgusting fury, and turning square, hurled her tremendous body with the speed of a vicious horse down upon that apparition.

The spectators saw the uncanny circle let itself out like a frightened thing, and leap and spin through the air towards the river below. But the sow behind was not only racing now—she was being shot down the slope as from a catapult with the weight of her own monstrous body, and in less than thirty seconds she closed her vicious fangs upon the mysterious black hoop.

As she did so, the apparition seemed to vanish into thin air, and the men believed that the sow, too, had been cheated. But instead of giving up the chase, the sow hurled herself upon something that, instead of going upright like a revolving wheel, went flat in the grass, and began feeding and grunting as contentedly as if at the trough.

When the four men reached the voracious animal, they beat her off with sticks and stones and investigated her capture. It was a great black snake, fully twelve feet long, and of unusual thickness for that species.

Every evening at sundown, high up near the clump of trees at the top of the slope, this snake had come from its lair—which was a wide-mouthed ground-squirrel hole—and cunningly thrusting its tail into its mouth, had erected its body and bowled like a hoop down the incline, to disappear into an opening in the ground near the river bank. Every evening it did this, save on those rare occasions when, either through alarm or to diversify its actions, it bowled uphill.

Which proves that nature and not man invented that most useful device—the wheel.

Ideal Soldier's Rations

A sergeant of the Texas Rangers, writes a contributor to the Youth's Companion, recently recorded that he was deeply impressed by the rations that the infantrymen used in the army of Gen. Joaquin Terrasas of Mexico when he was fighting old Chief Victorio of the Apaches in Mexico and Texas in 1880. While on the march each man carried a little canvas bag that held about a quart of ground parched corn sweetened with a little sugar. A tablespoonful of the mixture stirred into a pint cup of water made a good meal, and on that ration the men were well and strong and, because they traveled light, capable of taking long forced marches through rough and difficult country. It shows what an intelligent man the great general was.

PROSPERITY AS IS

A single office building in Atlanta, Ga., is to cost $6,000,000; and Harvard University is to build a business school at Brighton, Mass., for which it appropriates $5,000,000. New irrigation works at Grass Valley, Calif., will cost $7,500,000; a hotel in Portland, $2,000,000; a Presbyterian temple church at Dallas, Tex., will cost $2,000,000; a bridge at Wilmington, N. C., will cost $1,500,000; a hotel and garage at Indianapolis will represent $3,500,000; the Rainier-Longview bridge across the Columbia system at Loop, Mo., will cost $3,500,000; Gulfport, Miss., will spend $1,500,000 on roads and bridges; the Mission Beach Company and the San Diego Electric Railway are spending over $3,000,000 at MISSION BEACH on the finest seashore amusement resort in the west, combined with quick and adequate transportation facilities. These items, taken at random from all over the country, indicate that business conditions generally are good and that people have faith in the future. This record of employment and investment is the result of sound public consciousness—the condition which makes prosperity.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

COOKING ELECTRICALLY

Dollar Dinners for Four

Written for "The Beach News" by Sarah E. Dunn

Many housewives do not familiarize themselves with the various cuts of meat and for that reason many economies are almost impossible to effect. There are cuts which are extremely luscious and yet very much cheaper than what is generally supposed to be the better or best cuts. In fact it is the lack of ready sale of these less expensive cuts that sends the others sky-rocketing to the point where the persons of modest circumstances cannot touch them. Trying less expensive cuts once will not do, for one must learn to cook them properly before the best results may be had.

Here are two recipes which utilize less expensive cuts of meat which I have tested and found so excellent they have been given a regular place on my weekly menu.

Breaded Breast of Lamb

Have your butcher remove the bones from some breast of lamb. Then parboil in salted water on the electric range over "medium" heat, drain, wipe and dip in egg and cracker crumbs and fry for fifteen minutes over "medium" heat.

At the same time in a saucepan over "low" heat on the electric range melt a tablespoonful of butter or bacon fat. Stir into it two tablespoonfuls of flour, half a cupful of tomato paste and a cupful of the stock. Bring this to a boil and stir until it thickens. Serve with the lamb together with boiled potatoes.

Chuck Rib Roast

Have your butcher prepare, rolling and tying, the eye of the chuck rib for roasting and the trimmings for goulash. This is a very juicy piece of meat and if roasted properly will be delicious. To cook this cut I place it on the dripping rack of my baking pan, sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, half that quantity of pepper, pour in a cupful of hot water, add three onions as many carrots. Then I place it in my electric oven which I have pre-heated to 450 degrees Fahrenheit, brown it thoroughly and keep the heat at "high" for half an hour, after which I baste it well, reduce the heat to "medium" and allow it to cook twenty minutes for every pound of meat. A half-hour before the meat is ready to be taken out, however, I switch off the electricity and let this roast finish cooking in the stored heat. Also I bake my potatoes with the roast and also boil my vegetables in the oven at the same time thus conserving electricity.

VISITING VIRGINIAN

BECOMES BEATIFIC BRIDE OF THOMAS A. RIFE

A quiet church wedding solemnized last Wednesday morning, united in marriage Miss Lillian Caroline Hance of Washington, D. C., and Thomas A. Rife of San Diego. The wedding, which came as somewhat of a surprise to many of their friends, took place at All Saints' Episcopal church, with the Rev. Charles Murphy as officiating clergyman. Only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were present.

The bride has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Earnest S. Farley, at her home, 430 E. Grape street. She is a charming young girl in her early twenties, and has made many friends during her stay in this city, says the San Diego Union. She is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hance of Washington, D. C., and is a direct descendant of the Lee family of Virginia.

Mr. Rife is a well-known business and club man of this city, having resided here since boyhood. He is connected with George L. Barney in the Mission Beach company.

At the wedding ceremony last Wednesday the bride was gownned in an attractive creation of white, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Immediately following the service Mr. and Mrs. Rife left by auto for a wedding trip in the north. They will be at home to their friends after June 15, at 3714 Eighth street.

TAKE TIME

Now let them put despairing moods aside—
What disappointment and whatever grief
Have stayed their hands. Write now a trenchant brief
For long persistence. Let them all who tried
To speak their hearts take Time itself for guide,
That spreads its word upon each sprouting leaf,
Gathering but slowly sheaf to full-eared sheaf,
Nor tells the tale till growing-days have died.

Lost hope! Hope from lost hope has sprung
All beautifully alive and young and proud.
Tired throats! In weariness great Shakespeare sung,
Lifting the voice of triumph loud and loud.
Hurt hearts! From our past pain be now far-flung
Words that shall hearten the despairing crowd.

KEEPING WELL

MEASLES

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

MEASLES is one of the commonest of children's diseases. It is regarded by many mothers as comparatively harmless. Some foolish mothers knowingly expose their children to infection so that they "can have it and get it over with."

Is measles a minor and harmless disease?
The four greatest disasters to child life of the last 20 years were the Iroquois fire, in which 685 lives were lost; the General Slocum steamboat fire, which cost 958 lives; the Eastland disaster, in which 812 people were drowned; and the Knickerbocker theater collapse, where 98 people were killed.

The total loss of life in all four of these catastrophes was 2,553.
Measles killed 3,700 children last year in the United States alone. As a cause of death among children, measles stands second only to diphtheria.

Not exactly a minor disease, is it?

Measles occurs everywhere and all the year round. There is no natural immunity to it but if the child survives, it is generally immune to the disease for the rest of its life.

We do not know the cause of measles. It is probably caused by a germ which develops in the throat and nose. When the child coughs it throws out fine drops of moisture which remain suspended in the air. A well child breathes in these droplets, the germs grow in the throat and nose, and measles results.

In from nine to eleven days after exposure, the child has a fever and the symptoms of a "common cold." The rash appears three or four days later.

The fever continues, the eyes are inflamed and sensitive to light, the child's breathing is labored. Bronchitis and pneumonia may develop.

These complications are more dangerous than the original infection, especially in the case of a young child.

Don't knowingly expose your child to measles or any other infection. Keep it away from infected children. If your child is exposed, put it to bed eight days after exposure, before the first symptoms appear, and keep it there until you know whether the disease is going to develop. This will protect it from drafts and chills and will probably make the attack, if it does develop, much milder and less dangerous.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

FORMING HABITS

IN A broad sense, habit may be termed the element of conscious or unconscious persistence.

Some habits are opposed to noble growth, such as indolence, indifference to lofty impressions, forgetfulness, the acquirement of ragged tempers, vulgar speech, failure to adapt one's self to new circumstances, fault-finding and the common habit of thinking evil of one's friends and neighbors.

There are hundreds of such habits which are opposed to the development of the best there is in us, ruinous alike to our future careers and contentment.

By following a train of wrong ideas again and again, we gradually lose our ability to distinguish evil from good.

We become skeptical, cynical, narrow, and unless by some fortunate discovery we see the falsity of our position before it is too late to mend, we find ourselves in company with the grouches, sour-faced and fault-finders.

No man or woman who would win success and the good opinions of his or her friends, can hope to do so without first overcoming his or her degrading habits.

To do this there must be formed the practice of mental watchfulness with a will power behind it capable of moving always in the right direction.

The fixed disposition to do a thing comes from numerous repetitions. It is by such a process that good or bad customs are formed, which ultimately take to the bright hilltops, or down the dark valley of failure and discouragement.

One of the good habits to form in youth is that of attention, especially in regards to advice from parents, who know from experience what is needed for stimulation of growing minds.

This applies with like force to everybody in all stations of life, and especially to those who are dependent on others.

The habit of giving intense attention to orders, however trivial, and remembering them when the time arrives for their execution, marks the difference between the competent and the incompetent, the foolish and the wise, those who are destined for life servitude and those who are destined to lead.

Every good habit is laudable, every bad habit reprehensible.

Lick Home Town First, Good Advice to Boys

In a discussion entitled "How Can I Help My Boy Get Started," Bruce Barton gives sane counsel to the youth who thinks he can do better in New York city than in his own town. In his article in Good Housekeeping, the writer tells for the benefit of young men his experience with a lad he met in another city who felt himself called to the metropolis.

"It must be great to live in New York and meet so many interesting people," the boy said to him "Do you think I ought to go to New York?"

"No," I answered.

His face fell. "Why not?" "Because New York is full of chaps like you who have never done anything, and for the most part they lead very lonesome lives. You don't suppose these so-called 'interesting' people would have any interest in you, do you? Interesting people like interesting people. Success has no time for failures."

It was a shot between the eyes. He was silent for a full minute. His jaw set; it looked more than ever like his father's jaw.

"But I hate this town," he cried. "What's the use of staying in a place you hate? Why can't I start in New York?"

"Because it's a mistake to leave any town until you have licked it," I answered. "A man's life ought to be like the march of an army; he should conquer the territory as he travels, leaving no hostile forces in his rear."

"New York is the biggest thing in the country," I went on. "It's the champion, the Jack Dempsey, the Babe Ruth of all the towns. You can't step out and fight Dempsey right off. You've got to get a reputation; you've got to lick a lot of little fellows first. The place for you to start is here, in a town you don't like."

National Demand for Better Building Seen

There are a number of interesting statements in the semiannual statement of the American Construction Council, issued through its president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, recently. The statement was formulated at the meeting of the council held in New York city. Especially significant are the passages from the statement which follow:

"The increasing demand for better building, a movement which the council sponsored on a national scale last spring, is accompanied by a general undertone of increasing confidence as to the greater stability in the construction industry throughout the country as a whole."

"The amount of new work contracted for and begun has held up unusually well. This shows a very favorable response on the part of the public to the general movement."

"Even a more significant fact stands out as to the present type of building operations. There is a larger ratio of commercial and industrial structures contracted for than there has been for some time."

Ground Beautifying

Hardy plantings give permanent effects, and will grow more beautiful each season. Some bedding plants and annuals may be used also with effect, but where we are planting our own grounds for our home for an indefinite period we can get far better results if we use mostly hardy trees, shrubs and plants for our general planting. We need not plant all at once, but we can plan for the whole and work to our plan as we may. It takes years to obtain the full effect of some kinds of plants and these should be planted first, but we can use temporary plantings to help out in the meantime. There are a good many fine plants that can be made very effective on short notice, and even a good showing may be made with annuals from seeds in one summer. ### IS IT GARFIELD?

JAMES A. GARFIELD, twentieth president of the United States, was with the majority of presidents in his English ancestry, at least as far as his name is concerned. He was descended from Edward Garfield or Garfield, who was born in 1575 and came from his home in Chester, England, to settle in Watertown, Mass. It is said that his wife was probably an emigrant from Germany whom he married on the voyage to the new world.

The family was well established in Massachusetts, for the most part farmers. In the Revolution they served with such good will that most of the Garfield families came out of the war very much impoverished and it was at about that time that the Garfields pressed into New York state and further west with the hope of renewing their fortunes. It was in 1817 that the branch of the Garfield family to which the President belonged went to Ohio, and in 1831 James A. Garfield was born there.

Though the founder of the family spelled his name Garfield it is undoubtedly identical with the English Garfield family. This name is made up from Garth, having the same meaning as garden, and field. Garth-field or Garfield was probably first applied to a certain location which the description fitted and a family residing there assumed the name.

Grundy—This is the same as Gundry and is derived from an Anglo-Saxon personal name Gundred.

Milton—This usually is derived as a shortened form of Middleton as a name borne by many towns in old England.

CAN SING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IF A bird in a cage can sing, my dear. As though the days of the spring were here.

If a bird, forgetting the time o' year.

Can sing in a room that is dark and dim

As though he sat on a greening limb.

Yea, sing for those who imprison him.

If a bird, when all that he knew are gone

To the lovely South or the crimson dawn.

Can sit alone, and can still sing on—

Surely then you and I can sing.

Whatever shadows around us cling

Or what the moment may chance to bring.

Surely then you and I can be.

Though bound in body, in spirit free.

Can sing a little as well as he.

For few shall find what they most desire;

We are all shut in with our strands of wire.

Till hearts grow heavy and bodies tire;

We may not labor at what we dream;

But the whistling boy has the willing team.

And a little song makes a shorter season.

We lose some loves as we pass along.

There are some far, there are some close

Go wrong.

But still there is joy enough for song.

No night so dark but the dawn is near—

Oh, we can find some thought to cheer

If a bird in a cage can sing, my dear!

Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

MRS. LYANDER JOHN APPLETON is equal to any emergency. "I see," said a guest at dinner, picking up spoons that had been borrowed from the neighbors, "that you have children named Louise, Harold and Grace. I was under the impression that you had only two children: Daysey Mayme and Chauncey Devere." "We have only two," responded Mrs. Appleton, "the others are our children who are safe with Jesus." Then she fell over with a dry sob, and Lyander John fell over in a fit.

When Daysey Mayme Appleton has girl company in the evening, and Chauncey Devere is called upon to spend ten minutes in taking them home, he feels that he has a good excuse for not knowing every lesson next day, and blames it on his sister and mother.

A "word picture," as it is generally understood, is any paper prepared by the women on Meanness of Men. Of course Daysey Mayme never intends it, but her hearers can always see a good picture of her father sticking out of every line.

If all Mrs. Appleton says of her girlhood days is true the men are terribly changed. In those days a man would display great energy in courting a girl.

developing real race track abilities, but it is the experience of Daysey Mayme that the man of today climbs on a pedestal, and languidly beckons to some girl to come and worship at his feet.

SO GOOD!

BROIL fillets of beef as usual, season well with salt, pepper and butter, arrange on a platter, set into a dripping pan of hot water. On each fillet place a plump, well-drained oyster, put under the gas flame and cook until the edges curl and a minute longer (for half-cooked oysters are most unpalatable). Serve immediately, seasoned well and dotted with bits of butter. Garnish with parsley and lemon.

Tasty Sandwiches

For substantial sandwiches for a lunch or for Sunday night supper try these: Spread whole wheat bread with butter, then a layer of well-seasoned cottage cheese; place a leaf of lettuce dipped in French dressing on the cheese, cover with another slice of buttered bread.

Scotch Tea Cakes.

Take one cupful of sugar, two and one-half cupfuls of oatmeal, which has been lightly browned and then put through the meat grinder, two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of vanilla, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt. Drop them on buttered sheets and bake in a quick oven.

CHIC ENSEMBLE COSTUMES; NECKWEAR AND FRILLY JABOTS

OF COURSE you have decided on an ensemble costume for spring. How could one do otherwise and be in fashion? The question is, what material shall it be, what color, and there are just endless details which will stamp it as ultra-mode.

By exercising forethought and judgment one may just as well choose an ensemble, the coat of which may be worn as a separate wrap. That is the beauty of these ensembles, they are new spring wrap and Easter frock combined.

Charmeen, kasha, flannel, heavy ribbed silk, crepe satin, jersey cloth, costume in the picture. Caracul for the collar, with bandings of embroidery contribute a share in the charming development of the coat.

In the matter of charming novelty collar and cuff sets so modishly worn with this season's devoid-of-trimming flannel frocks, the law of compensation works out beautifully. What care we if Madam Mode demands that our spring woolen dresses for school, street and general utility wear be narrow, short and without a vestige of trimming, for the account is balanced with an endless array of smart linen collar and cuff sets, vestees, frilly jaand fine wool twill, any one of these materials make up handsomely as far as the coat is concerned. Flat crepe, fine fallie silk, gay printed crepes and silks, also georgette play leading roles as lining to the coat and tunic; upper frock portion (if the dress be half-in-half), or as a one-piece dress as the style may be.

For immediate wear why not choose a navy blue or black very fine wool twill, for the coat, likewise for the wide knee-depth hem of the one-piece frock and for trimming? If you have the courage to wear it, the upper portion of the dress might be of bright red flat or cotton crepe, and, of course, the coat lining is of the same. Too bots and other lingerie accessories designed especially to add a feminine touch to the now-so-fashionable tailored simplicity costume.

Fine neckwear is an indulgence which the gentleman feels never to be an extravagance, rather an economy, for it makes even the simplest frock take on an exquisite appearance. Just now the young girls are enthusing over the gay-colored linen collars and cuffs which are starched "stiff as a board."

Of all the new ideas, perhaps the most thrilling in the mind of the school girl are the sets made of cretonnes. Even if one has not yet seen these charming collars and cuffs, it is easy to visualize how effective these bizarre, you say? Not according to the Parisian idea of color. In fact, bright red is most popular this season, for hats, scarfs, blouses and tunics. Whether the waist and coat lining be red, gray, or beige, each registers on the style program. Of course the red in this costume or colorful tunic and lining never gives a hint of its presence when the coat is fastened.

Crepe satin responds exquisitely to the demands of the ensemble costume. It proves effective even if in monochrome color, for the fact that it may be used reverse insures contrast.

Heavy bengaline silk in black or in solid colors is a very fashionable medium. There are faille silks to be had, which match perfectly.

By far the majority of ensembles use gay printed silks and crepes for lining and tunic.

Spring-like and lovely are the dainty blond, gray and string-color wool jersey ensembles, with flat crepe combinations. Suede-like cloth in tones of amber (a leading color this season) and russet is used for the arresting flowery pieces are at neck and wrist. Some of the cretonne sets are starched like the colorful linen ones. Others follow the same lines, but they retain a soft finish and are lace-edged.

The jabot, this season, reigns supreme as an accessory or as part of the dress itself. As an antidote for austere tailored lines nothing quite does its part as the frilly, fluttering jabot. All sorts are in vogue, from a simple cascade of picot-edged georgette to elaborate lacy affairs.

Lace collars have jabots to match and the very newest thing is close-fitting high collars, with crepe jabots.

There is also a wide selection of vestees. Camisole vestees with real flit or Irish crochet will repeat their triumphs of the past.

Most flattering are lovely flesh-colored satin vestees; they are so charming one forgets all about the conventional aspect of the severely tailored frock.

SPECIAL CHEMICALS TO REMOVE STAINS

Coloring Matters Used in Writing Inks Differ.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Indelible or marking inks, "India" ink, and printing ink differ in chemical composition from ordinary writing inks. Special chemicals are accordingly necessary to remove them. Directions for applying these may be found in Farmers' Bulletin 861, "Removal of Stains from Clothing," which also gives information about stains made by writing inks.

The coloring matters commonly used in writing inks include the following: Combinations of logwood or nutgalls with ferrous or ferric salts or with salts of other metals, such as chromium and aluminum; aniline dyes, which are used either alone or with coloring matters of the type mentioned above; finely divided carbon in the form of lampblack. Colored inks usually consist of an aniline dye, gums, sugar, or glycerin often are added to thicken an ink and hold the coloring matter in suspension, and phenol often is added to keep it from molding.

Owing to the difference in the composition of writing inks, it is impossible to find agents which are equally effective in removing all ink spots.

Using Chemicals to Take Out Ink Stains.

Each of the agents mentioned below is satisfactory with some types of ink. For an ink spot of unknown composition, it is necessary to try various agents, beginning always with the simplest and that least likely to injure the fabric. Use one of the following agents:

1. Absorbents: Corn meal, salt, French chalk, fuller's earth, magnesite, talcum powder, etc. The application of such substances serves to remove any ink not absorbed by the fibers and keeps it from spreading. For a large ink spot, apply one of these substances before trying other agents. Work the absorbent around with some blunt instrument and renew it when it becomes soiled. When dry absorbent falls to take up more ink, make it into a paste with water and continue the application.

2. Soap and water, as in ordinary laundering. This is satisfactory for some types of school inks, which can be washed from fabrics; for carbon inks, which are unaffected by chemicals and can be removed only mechanically, and sometimes for the fresh stains of other inks.

3. Milk. Soak the stains for a day or two. If necessary, in milk, changing the milk as often as it becomes discolored. This is effective for some stains.

The foregoing methods may be used safely on all washable fabrics. If they fail to remove the spot, chemicals may be tried. Special directions for applying these are given in the bulletin.

REDUCE BILL FOR CHILDREN'S SHOES

Leather of Good Quality Is Most Economical.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Have the children's school shoes carefully fitted, allowing in length for the growth that is almost certain to occur within two or three months. Besides being more comfortable and better for the child's feet, well-fitting shoes look better and wear longer, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Shoes of good leather are more economical in the long run than those of poor quality; sometimes they will outwear several pairs of inferior grade, and may stand resoling three or even four times. Small rips should be attended to at once. Often the rips can be sewed at home. Brass nails in the heels make less noise in walking than iron ones. Rubber heels prevent jarring in walking and are comfortable, and for some persons they seem to wear longer than leather heels. Run-down heels should never be worn; they spoil the shape of the whole shoe.

If two pairs of shoes are kept in use and worn on alternate days, both pairs will last longer. It is difficult to get boys to take proper care of shoes, and especially to keep them dry. If a boy can be made to realize that getting his shoes wet spoils their appearance, rots the thread, and makes them soon wear out, he will be more likely to take better care of them. If his shoes get wet he should know that they must be very slowly and carefully dried, because wet leather burns easily and when dried too rapidly is harsh, stiff and readily cracked. Shoe-trees or paper stuffings should be used when drying wet shoes.

The use of suitable oil or grease greatly increases the endurance of shoe leather by making it more water resistant. Among the best materials for this purpose are neat-foot, cod, and castor oils, tallow, and wool grease, or mixtures of them. Cylinder oil and vaseline or petroleum also are good, but are improved by being mixed with animal oils or greases. Castor oil is probably the most satisfactory for shoes that are to be polished. The application of oil or grease to light-colored and russet leather darkens it.

Why not keep a shoe record? suggests the new bureau of home economics. An account of the number of days' wear will show which type is the best to buy and that good care pays.

Care of Kitchen Utensils

The United States Department of Agriculture makes the following suggestions on the care of kitchen utensils:

Proper care and storage of utensils mean longer and better service. Scraping and scouring scratch metal and chip glass. If food is burned or stuck on, soak or boil in a solution of washing soda unless the dish is aluminum. Wipe off soot and grease with soft paper. Wash utensils in hot, soapy water, rinse in hot and dry thoroughly. Exceptions are gears and bearings in egg beaters, ice cream freezers and other mechanical utensils which should be wiped clean rather than put into water and should have a drop of oil occasionally. Cooking dishes, pitchers, milk bottles, and jars are best cleaned with suitable brushes or mops. Store utensils by hanging or putting on convenient, accessible, and well-spaced shelves near where they are to be used. Keep them where it is light and airy, not in dark, unventilated cupboards.

Bacon Sandwiches for School

In many families the school children, and often older members of the household, carry sandwiches. Bacon can be put in these sandwiches, either by itself or in combination with other meat, lettuce and salad dressing, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture. When time is short, plain bacon sandwiches consisting of bread and two or three slices of crisp cooked bacon can be put together in a very few minutes.

Sliced onion or pickle in a bacon sandwich gives an acceptable flavor.

MAKE SAVORY MEAT ROLLS FOR A CHANGE

Appetizing Cannelloni of Beef.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Savory meat rolls in great variety are made out of chopped meat, either with or without egg. The variety is secured by the flavoring materials used and by the sauces with which the baked rolls are served. If a few general principles are borne in mind, recipes are unnecessary, and it is possible to utilize whatever may happen to be on hand, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture.

Appetizing rolls are made with beef and pork mixed. The proportion varies from two parts of beef and one of pork to two of pork and one of beef. The rolls are always improved by laying thin slices of salt pork or bacon over them, to keep the surface moistened with fat during the roasting. These slices should be scored on the edge so that they will not curl up in cooking. Bread crumbs or cooked cereal can be added to make the meat go farther. When onions, green peppers, or other vegetables are used, they have a better flavor if they are browned in fat before being put into the roll. Sausage makes a good addition to the roll, or unseasoned pork may be used, with the addition of a little sage

"Yes, sir."

"Your breech lock has a streak of grease on it."

"Yes, sir."

"Your blankets aren't rolled properly."

"Yes, sir."

"I'm amazed at you, Private Bullard."

"Yes, sir; thank you, sir."

Inspection over, a large and condoling crowd of messmates gathered around the only private in D company who had got a call.

"Doggone!" exclaimed that unhappy lad. "Why don't he know enough to keep out of here?"

Save on Your Gas and See the Scenery!

By WILLIAM E. KNOX
President American Bankers Association.

A long, long time ago, a very great teacher said, "Man shall not live by bread alone." That is true. A man who lives by bread alone and simply feeds his body will be nothing more than an animal. There is more than bread that goes to the making of a life. There are the things of the mind and the spirit, and we are all of us making a great mistake if we measure success in this world by material things. Material things are all right and ought to be emphasized to some extent, but they should not occupy more than their proper place in the scheme of things. Over and above and beyond them are the things of the intellect, and over and above those are the things of the spirit, the finer things of life. If, in reaching out for material prosperity, we forget those things, we may get the material prosperity, but we will not get true joy and true happiness out of life. I want to commend to every one that, in addition to striving for the good things of this life which are good in their way, to remember the other things also.

William E. Knox

I promise you if you do that, it will not make any difference whether you get great rewards or not; it will not make any difference whether you arrive at high position or not. You will have instead a great inward satisfaction, and you will feel that you have lived a pretty good life and had a good time while you were doing it. Have your good time as you go along. Don't be like the automobilists that go whizzing over the country at sixty miles an hour and arrive at their destinations at the end of the day's run not having seen the beauties of the country they went through; having seen nothing of the birds or the flowers, of the streams and the trees and the hills, but having just totaled up so many miles on such an expenditure of gas. Save on your gas and enjoy the scenery as you go along through life. Just put that into operation—save on your gas and see more of the scenery!

STORE CREDIT COSTS 26 PER CENT.

In a survey of 300 farms made by the North Carolina Experiment Station, it was found that over 40 per cent of the total credit needs for the farmer is for short term loans, either through the bank or through merchant advances. Only one-sixth of this amount comes from banks and the rest from stores or landlords. For store credit farmers are paying over 26 per cent interest, and only a little better than half of the farmers realized this fact. The bank rate of interest at the same time was only a trifle above 6 per cent. Practically all merchants would be delighted to go over to a cash basis.

The remedy lies in the production of more food and feed and in the discountance of shipping in hay and grain with their attendant high freight rates and dealers' profits. This means the establishment of better working relations between bankers and farmers, for there is great opportunity for educating the farmer along the line of bank credit.—Banker-Farmer.

SOUND PRINCIPLES FOR ALLIED DEBTS

Payments to America Should Be Guided by Dawes Plan, Says C. E. Mitchell.

The fundamental principles of the Dawes plan for settling the European war debt question are applicable to the problem of the Allied debts to the United States, Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, declares in an article in the American Bankers Association Journal. Mr. Mitchell says:

"Debts between nations are always a source of international trouble, and I consider it of great importance that our own economic as well as political relations with such countries as France, Belgium and Italy may be improved by an early adjustment of their debts to our own national government."

Country Endorsed Dawes Plan
"I hope that we are gradually learning that such debts, if unduly forced, may result more calamitously to the commercial interests of our own country than to those of the debtor country. This talk of forcing payment of 'every dollar to the last penny,' is commercially unwise. I think we may assume that the Dawes plan has had the endorsement of the American people through their election of General Dawes to the Vice Presidency of the United States. That plan is one that establishes fundamental principles which may be applied in considering the debts of one nation to another resulting from war."

"The first principle, as I see it, is that the yoke of the war debt shall not be held as a burden upon the people beyond the generation that had to do with the war. This principle is clearly intimated in the fact that the industrial and railway debentures which form the principal security and means of payment of the debt carry 5 per cent interest with 1 per cent amortization, which means that such obligations are to be over a period of about thirty-six years."

An Invitation to Trouble
"Any attempt to force the carrying of such debt burdens to the second and third generations is but an engraved invitation to further trouble."

"The second principle is that the debtor country shall be taxed to the limit while the debt remains, but in no event to a point where its economic structure collapses under the strain, and, further, that the nations of the debtor country shall in no case have a lesser burden of taxation upon them than have the nations of the creditor country—another principle the soundness of which cannot be questioned."

"The third principle is that with such taxes collected, payments therefrom shall be made to the creditor country to such an extent only as they can be made without disrupting international exchange and commerce. The soundness of this last is apparent on its face."

"These I regard as the fundamental principles of the Dawes plan, and all of the hundreds of pages of the so-called Dawes report are devoted to setting up the machinery by which these principles can be put into effect."

"If these principles are accepted as sound then they must also be sound principles by which the payment of the debts of allied countries to us shall be determined, and we would best apply such a yardstick as our measure, rather than attempt to make popular the slogan of 'every dollar to the last penny.' In the adjustment of our foreign relations, essential to the development of increased export and import trade, there can be no problem of greater importance than reaching a sound and final conclusion as to this irritating question of the debts of allied countries to ourselves."

LIBRARY LIGHTS

BURN ALL NIGHT

All the world may love a lover, but the staid New York public library with its main building at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, seems to frown upon petting parties. On the evening of April 6 a strange order went forth and as a result when 10 o'clock came around the electric lights which illuminate the terrace in front of the library did not go out. Thus also the two marble lions that guard the portals of the library from that night forth have been robbed of their beauty sleep and the terrace in front of the library is no longer a haven for those whom all the world is supposed to love.

Instead the twenty lamp posts which surround the library have all been equipped with 200 watt nitrogen filled electric lamps and all are now kept lighted until morning. Additional lighting will also be installed in the arches of the main entrance to the library with the result that this once quiet spot will no longer be a place that entices one to linger.
